BREAK LOOMS
IN 11-DAY-OLD
MARINE TIEUPWASHINGTON HOTEL
STRIKE AFFECTS
CONGRESSMEN

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A possible break in the 11-day-old nationwide shipping strike appeared Friday when the CIO Marine Engineers offered to negotiate an immediate contract with Atlantic and Gulf coast operators.

The union previously insisted on a national agreement unless the maritime commission would make an advance commitment that terms of any eastern contract also would apply to government-owned vessels on the west coast.

A union spokesman, asserting the development could lead to early settlement of the strike which has tied up 600 vessels on all coasts, expressed confidence negotiations would be resumed soon with eastern operators.

Meanwhile, 5,000 service employees went on strike in 13 Washington hotels, two persons were injured and 38 arrested in a renewal of violence in the Hollywood movie labor jurisdictional dispute, and the National Labor Relations Board considered a quick union election among striking power workers in Pittsburgh.

Clashes in Hollywood
The Washington hotel strike, called by four AFL unions, left some Congressmen, cabinet members and other officials facing the prospect of making their own beds. The walkout came when the managements rejected a compromise proposal of labor conciliators for hourly wage boosts of eight cents for employees receiving no tips and four cents for others.

In Hollywood police riot squads, swinging night sticks, cleared a path through the pickets outside the first-class in more than a week. More than 40 have been injured and 106 arrested in the three weeks dispute between rival AFL unions over the question of representing movie set builders.

Acting with unusual speed, the National Labor Relations Board in Washington directed an election at the Duquesne Light company in Pittsburgh, where an 18 day strike of independent union members has cut power service to a trickle. Three unions are challenging the majority standing of the striking union. A board spokesman said that although 30 days usually is allowed for such an election, it probably would be held in a week or 10 days.

Grand Rapids Bank
Robbery Suspect Is Arrested In Jersey

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 11. (P)—Vincent Henry, wanted since 1932 as a suspect in the robbery of a Grand Rapids, Mich., bank and the slaying of a Kent county sheriff's deputy, was arrested here during a routine checkup of rooming houses, Deputy Police Chief John F. McCarthy said today.

The officer said Henry admitted his identity and the New Jersey bureau of identification verified it also through fingerprints. Henry was one of four Detroit men accused of holding up the Grand Rapids State Savings Bank May 27, 1932, and escaping with $6,000. During their flight Deputy Sheriff Charles Knapp was slain in Lowell, Mich.

Russians Reminded
That U. S. Opposes
Dardanelles Bases

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Oct. 11. (P)—The United States today firmly restated its opposition to Soviet bases in the Dardanelles and warned Russia that this country does not intend to be shouldered out of the negotiations over the vital straits.

The American position was set forth in a note delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith. The note was dated October 9 but released only today by the state department.

From Istanbul, meanwhile, came dispatches predicting that Turkey, assured of continued American and British opposition to Russia's main demand, might agree to a Soviet request for direct Ankara-Moscow talks.

Britain sent a note to Turkey several days ago. Persons familiar with it said it also supported Turkey in opposition to any Russian military expansion into the straits.

The United States newest communication, which was circulated yesterday among the signers of the 1936 Montreux treaty governing the Dardanelles made these main points:

1. Declared that when the United States, Russia and Britain agreed at Potsdam to propose changes in the Montreux treaty they recognized each other's interests in the straits and no one of them has a right to cut the others out.

2. Favored greater rights for Soviet ships in the waterway but opposed joint control by the so-called Black Sea powers, chiefly Russia and Turkey.

3. Reaffirmed that Turkey should be primarily responsible for defending the straits but in case they were threatened with attack "the resulting situation would be a matter for action on the part of the security council of the United Nations."

Several Injured In Roof
Collapse At Sioux City
Business Place

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 11. (P)—A woman was killed and eight persons injured this afternoon when the roof of a building housing business establishments and at least six one-room apartments collapsed and fell two floors to the basement.

The body of Mrs. Maxine Nelson, 35, a barmaid in a tavern occupying part of the first floor, was extricated from the debris tonight by crews of firemen and policemen after street department workers had removed some of the wreckage.

Rescue work was stopped after the removal of the body as Fire Chief Charles B. Kuhl said he believed all persons in the building at the time of its collapse had been accounted for.

Five persons remained in the hospital tonight. They were Mrs. Nettie Johnson, 66; Mrs. Leah Marsh, 26; C. C. Garside, 66; John Ballie, 69; and Mrs. Eva Wood, all of Sioux City. Released after treatment were Mrs. Katherine Pippin, 26, and her one-year-old son, Bruce; and Mrs. Arnold Hansen, all of Sioux City.

Yale Buys Up Beef
In Nebraska, Iowa
Gridders Eat Horse

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11. (P)—H. J. Gramlich, general agricultural agent of the Chicago and North-western Railway systems, said today that Yale University had sent a representative to the Ak-Sar-Ben livestock show here to purchase several carloads of beef for the Yale football team's training table.

Gramlich said he was "amazed that Iowa, one of the richest farm areas in the world, should be forced to place its native sons at Iowa State on horseflesh rations while Yale was able to import healthy fat cattle from Nebraska, plumply rounded out on Iowa corn."

Iowa State college recently announced that its football training table would feature tasty horse steaks.

Gramlich suggested a post-season football game between Iowa State and Yale "to determine whether Yale men fed on Iowa beef are the equals of Iowans fed on horse meat."

"Yale would be completely baffled," he predicted, "if the Iowa quarterback started calling signals by singing out 'giddyap, three, four, whoa, gee, haw!'" instead of the four horsemen, it would be the eleven horse-fed men of Iowa State."

FREE DANUBE
WRITTEN INTO
PEACE TREATYEAST - WEST SPLIT
VOTE APPROVES
BULGAR PACT

BY LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, Saturday, Oct. 12. (P)—The 21-nation peace conference early today wrote into the Bulgarian peace treaty provisions to internationalize the Danube river, matching the action taken early yesterday in the Romanian treaty.

The action was sealed by a 15 to 6 east-west split vote, the same ratio that has marked most of the votes on controversial commercial and military issues.

Early in the session that began at 9:50 o'clock Friday night, the conference failed to agree on frontiers for Bulgaria, apparently throwing the problem of the border between Greece and Bulgaria back to the foreign ministers' council for final decision.

Greece Gains Point
The Danube question is to come up again in handling of the Hungarian treaty, scheduled to be discussed in sessions later today.

The conference's return of the Bulgarian border issue to the foreign ministers without recommendation was an unexpected point gained for Greece.

The upset came after the United States had pledged to join in United Nations defense of Greece against any aggressor, arguing that United Nations action was a better security for the Hellenic kingdom than the strategic frontiers sought with her northern neighbor.

What disposition the Big Four would make of the frontier issue was problematical, however, as Russian consent would be necessary to extension of Greek territory into the Bulgarian mountains.

The conference also voted 12 to 6 to forbid Bulgaria from constructing any fortifications along her border with Greece, and to order the Bulgarians to destroy any war material capable of being fired into Greek territory. There were three abstentions.

McKeighan Fights
Extradition, Taken
To Miami Hospital

Miami, Fla., Oct. 11. (P)—William J. McKeighan, five times winner of the Florida state prizefighting extrajudicial, to Michigan, to face gambling conspiracy charges, was admitted to a hospital here today suffering from a heart condition.

The hospital reported this afternoon that his condition was "good."

McKeighan was scheduled to have appeared at a recessed writ of habeas corpus hearing this morning.

Judge Charles A. Carroll continued the affair until Tuesday after the official Dade county physician had checked on McKeighan and reported a "chronic heart ailment which may have been aggravated by excitement of the court proceedings."

Earlier, McKeighan's attorney, William J. Pruitt, told Carroll his client suffered from nervous indigestion Wednesday and later had eaten some food which gave him ptomaine poison.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida recently signed an extradition warrant for McKeighan's return to Macomb county, Michigan, to face the gambling conspiracy charges.

Snow Falls In Dakotas
And Minnesota; Drop
Due Here Sunday

Chicago, Oct. 11. (P)—The coldest weather of the season over-spread most of the mountain states and midwest today bringing temperatures ranging from near freezing to four degrees below zero at Alamosa, Colo.

The mercury hovered near the freezing mark even at mid-day in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota. Light snow fell in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Freezing temperatures were recorded as far south as western Kansas and western Oklahoma.

The cold snap was moving slowly eastward with subfreezing weather forecast for Iowa, Wisconsin, northern Illinois and northern Indiana by Sunday morning. It ultimately will spread as far east as Pennsylvania, forecasters said, but will moderate as it progresses.

MIRACLE FALL — Photo-diagram above shows where Louis Bueche, Pittsburgh, Pa., window cleaner, fell five stories, landed atop a new 1946 car, got up and walked away. The top of the car, (white arrow) was badly dented. Bueche, picked up by police ambulance later, complained only of an eye injury, but examination disclosed a fractured spine.

However, he said press reports have brought out the opinion of observers that the fairness of the trial had "left much to be desired." He mentioned the reportedly hostile atmosphere of the Zagreb court room as one element tending in that direction.

Apparently resigned to such a verdict, Stepinac insisted throughout his trial that "my conscience is clear," and in one of the few times he addressed the court declared that "when there is peace... there will be none who will say a word against my archbishopric."

MOTHER KILLED;
SON HAD 'URGE'

Boy, 17, Held In Fatal
Shooting At Iowa
Farm Home

Knoxville, Ia., Oct. 11. (P)—A Marion county farm youth who was quoted by officers as saying "I just had an urge to shoot something" was held in the county jail tonight without charge in connection with the fatal shooting of his mother.

Deputy Sheriff Loren Jarman said Maynard Griebben, about 17, signed a statement admitting he fatally wounded his mother, Mrs. May Griebben, 55, yesterday at their farm home four miles south of here.

"I don't know why I shot her," the officer quoted the youth, who said he was either 17 or 18, he wasn't "sure."

Maynard was arrested at the farm today by Sheriff Jim Van Heert, who said the officers found on him the woman's purse containing $250. The sheriff related the boy said he found the purse in a bed after the shooting.

Jarman said the youth's statement related:

He had risen early but didn't feel like going to work and told his mother he was going back to bed. She went into a corn field to pull ears for the hogs. While she was there, he took a rifle and shot a sparrow. Then he went to the door and saw her returning across the yard. He shot her.

The youth then went to a neighbor's with a story of finding his mother in the yard, shot in the hip. A doctor was called and Mrs. Griebben was taken to a Pleasantville hospital, where she died last night.

Two Ionia Guards
Fired For Selling
Inmates Contraband

Ionia, Mich. 11. (P)—Warden Joel R. Moore of the Ionia State Reformatory announced the dismissal of guards Robert Pommerville and Preston Lockwood today.

He said the action was taken on the suggestion of the hearing board of the state correction commission which heard charges that the pair had admitted contraband material into the reformatory.

The two men, who did not appear at the hearing, were accused of buying the contraband in Ionia and selling it to inmates.

PRELATE GETS PRISON TERM
IN YUGOSLAVIAARCHBISHOP FOUND GUILTY OF AIDING
AXIS PUPPETS

BY OSGOOD CARUTHERS

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Oct. 11. (P)—Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac, head of the Roman Catholic church in Yugoslavia was convicted by a peoples court today of sponsoring organization of Ustashi terrorists and was sentenced to 16 years imprisonment at hard labor.

The balding, 48-year-old archbishop, described by Bishop Joseph P. Hurley, the American rector of the apostolic nunciature in Belgrade, as "the Mercier of our time," received the verdict without emotion, looking straight at the court.

In Washington, Undersecretary of State Acheson said that the United States feels "concern and deep worry" about the possible unfairness of the Yugoslav trial of Archbishop Stepinac.

Acheson told a news conference that the United States has not received any request from the Vatican for intervention in the prelate's conviction, and that his comment was not based on any official evidence of any violation of civil liberty in the conduct of the trial.

Court Room Hostile
However, he said press reports have brought out the opinion of observers that the fairness of the trial had "left much to be desired."

Apparently resigned to such a verdict, Stepinac insisted throughout his trial that "my conscience is clear," and in one of the few times he addressed the court declared that "when there is peace... there will be none who will say a word against my archbishopric."

Two co-defendants were sentenced to death by the three-man court. Ten others, including the archbishop's secretary and a number of priests, drew prison sentences. Three Franciscan monks for whom the prosecution had asked clemency were acquitted.

The audience of 600, which stood through the long reading of the judgment, cheered as sentence was pronounced upon Stepinac.

The archbishop was convicted on all main counts of sympathizing with the Axis, the puppet Croatian regime of Dr. Anton Pavelic and the Croatian wartime Ustashi terrorists.

Chinese Reds See
War To The Finish

Nanking, Oct. 11. (P)—Chinese government troops captured Kai-shan today, Chiang Kai-shek's ministry of national defense claimed—an eventuality which the Chinese Communists warned would mean the last hope of a negotiated peace and the opening of a fratricidal war to the finish.

Gloomy Communist spokesmen adopted a policy to "wait and see" while seeking confirmation from their own field sources that their regional capital, in the mountains of Chahar province 100 miles northwest of Peiping, was swept up by a swift drive from its rear.

The Communists had much of their military equipment stored in Kai-shan and it also poured fourth war munitions on a small scale for Chinese Communist guerrillas who harassed American Marines with bullets and propaganda.

The month-long offensive reached its climax four days ahead of the deadline set by the government for wresting the city from its defenders. The report of the abrupt fall strongly suggested the Communists were up to their familiar tactics of pulling out at the last minute to preserve their forces.

Truman May Give
Solution To Meat
Shortage Sunday

(By The Associated Press)

Washington, Oct. 11. (P)—Relaxation of the meat price controls was reported authoritatively today to be definitely under consideration by President Truman.

While a final decision has not been made, the president hopes to find at least a partial solution for the meat shortage by the weekend and to announce it to the nation by radio Sunday night.

The situation came to a head at a cabinet meeting today which lasted one hour and 35 minutes, the longest cabinet session Mr. Truman ever has held.

YOUNG COP NOT
ENDORSED YET

Convention At Detroit
Skips Stand On 1948
Presidential Race

Detroit, Oct. 11. (P)—As 400 delegates to the Michigan Federation of Young Republicans convention attended the opening dinner-dance tonight, early predictions that the group would take a stand on a 1948 presidential candidate went glimmering.

John Rae of Ann Arbor, chairman of the resolutions committee, revealed his committee will not recommend endorsement of any candidate.

G. Gordon Walker, president of the federation, said earlier that a group might seek endorsement of Harold E. Stassen, but tonight he declared:

"We have presidential timber in Michigan. Why should we go out of the state for an endorsement? We probably won't do anything about it."

The convention will get down to business at 10 a. m. Saturday with the opening session. Former Gov. Alexander Groesbeck is scheduled for the key-note address at 11 a. m., and election of officers will follow. The convention will conclude in the afternoon with discussion and adoption of resolutions.

In addition to the selection of Rae as resolutions chairman, Walker announced the following appointments as committee chairmen:

Fred Kaess of Detroit, convention; Alan Lawton of Battle Creek, permanent order of business; Anthony Stamm of Kalamazoo, credentials; Arbedea Morey of Detroit, convention arrangements, and Mrs. A. H. Loomis of Grand Rapids, publicity.

Famed Gen. Stilwell
Fighting For Life,
Gets Combat Badge

San Francisco, Oct. 11. (P)—General Joseph W. (Uncle Joe) Stilwell fought the grimmest battle of his life tonight as he was awarded the decoration he has coveted most in all his fighting career.

It was the combat infantryman's badge—given only to those men who have come personally to grips with the enemy.

The award was directed by Secretary of War Patterson, who instructed the 6th Army headquarters from Washington to present the combat infantryman's badge to the 63-year-old soldier now waging a battle against death at Letterman General hospital.

This afternoon, in the latest bulletin from the hospital, "Vinegar Joe" was reported growing weaker.

Price On Newspapers
Hiked To $84 A Ton;
Decontrol Refused

Washington, Oct. 11. (P)—Newsprint price ceilings went up $10 a ton today, but OPA turned down publishers' request for complete decontrol of this material, on which newspapers are printed.

On the basis of present consumption the price increase means a boost of about $42,500,000 in annual cost of newsprint.

It was the sixth increase in newsprint ceilings under OPA controls and lifted prices to $84 a ton, compared with an original ceiling of $50.

Although denying the request for freedom from price ceilings "at the present time," OPA said it is studying the "relation of newsprint prices to business and living costs as a possible basis for decontrol."

GROUP CALLED
NEXT TUESDAY
LAST OF YEARNEARLY 1,000,000
VOLUNTEERS

Washington, Oct. 11. (P)—With nearly 1,000,000 volunteers in uniform, the Army today declared a draft holiday for the rest of 1946.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, was notified by the War Department that some 20,000 men who already had been called up for induction the last half of October, and 15,000 men in the November quota, need not report.

For December there will be no quota, but no promises were made beyond the first of the year. The War Department said the suspension did not prejudice its right to renew calls if future volunteer enlistments fail to maintain adequate military strength.

The holiday was the second this year. There were no calls in July and August.

Act Expires March 31
Today's action promised to figure in congressional debate if the war department should ask a further extension of the selective service act beyond next March 31, its present expiration date.

Foes of the draft argued vainly when the issue was up last spring that with the army in the process of reducing from 1,550,000 to 1,070,000 this fiscal year, volunteers alone would meet the need for replacements. One argument on the other side was that the draft law was necessary to spur enlistments.

The war department's action will halt the draft machinery entirely for the rest of the year; the navy has received no men by induction since last May.

Selective service officials said the last 1946 draftees would be inducted next Tuesday. Those under induction orders for that date will be required to report but telegrams to local boards directed the cancellation of "presidential greetings" for induction on Oct. 16 or later.

Children Beaten As Mother Looks On;
Detroit Pair Hunted

Detroit, Oct. 11. (P)—Ralph Emerson, 31, accused of beating four, all children, with his fists while their mother looked on, was named today in two warrants charging assault to do great bodily harm.

Emerson disappeared with the mother, Mrs. Marie Wahler, 31, shortly after the alleged beatings Wednesday night. They are the objects of a widespread police hunt.

Policewoman Carol Williams quoted Mrs. Wahler's 11-year-old daughter, Barbara, as saying she and her three-year-old sister, Dorothy, were struck by Emerson when he came home with Mrs. Wahler early the morning of Oct. 3. On Wednesday, Barbara said, she and her sisters, Janice, 5, and Shirley, 6, again were beaten by Emerson while their mother watched.

Police said Mrs. Wahler was separated from her husband.

Van Wagoner Outlines Program For Veterans; Doyle Attacks Sigler

Murray D. Van Wagoner, Democratic candidate for governor last night in Escanaba outlined a program of assistance to Michigan war veterans, while Thurman B. Doyle of Menominee, Democratic candidate for attorney general, attacked the record of Kim Sigler, Republican nominee for governor as special grand jury prosecutor and characterized him a "false crusader."

Also speaking at the Democratic rally held in the city hall was Marvin L. Coon of Escanaba, candidate for auditor general, who last night returned from a campaign tour in Lower Michigan for the rally here. Atty. Wheaton L. Strom introduced the speakers.

Prior to the rally in the city hall the state candidates were honored at a dinner at the House of Ludington, attended by representatives of labor, industry, and the commanders of local veterans' organizations. At the rally Atty. J. Clyde McGonagle, candidate for reelection on the Democratic ticket, introduced the other local Democratic candidates.

"On the ballot November 5 will be Amendment No. 3, providing for payment of a state soldiers' bonus. I am in favor of this bonus; I will vote for it; and I am urging the public to get behind this amendment with every vote we can muster," Van Wagoner said. "At the same time I want to make crystal clear my belief that I do not believe we can wipe out our obligation to our returning veterans by payment of this bonus, helpful as it will undoubtedly be."

"Nor must this bond issue to finance the bonus be financed, however indirectly, by these men who have so gallantly earned this token of gratitude. Before proceeding further into my veterans' program, let me clarify my thinking for you on what I profoundly believe is the extent of our obligation to these men," Van Wagoner continued.

Vets Want "Square Deal"
"They are not 'gimme folks' and they do not want 'something for nothing'."

"All the veteran wants is a square deal and an opportunity. When these men and these women went to war they were average American citizens being called upon for a special job. They performed their assignment brilliantly. They have returned home now, and basically, they are the same fine specimens of our manhood and womanhood who left for the front. They are older, they are wiser, and they have no patience with double-talk or airy platitudes."

"All they are seeking is the privilege and the opportunity of once again returning to their civilian ways. For as long as five years, many of these veterans courageously and willingly packed away their civilian lives, their hopes, and their aspirations."

"I stand here tonight and challenge any man in the State of Michigan to hedge or to hesitate over our obligation to our veterans for what they have contributed to us," Van Wagoner said.

"We all know many of these veterans stand in urgent need of homes. In the fox-holes of Europe and the Pacific I am sure their dreams did not include being forced to double up with their in-laws. I am sure these dreams did not include cramped and dingy furnished rooms—or the scattering of their children to find shelter for their heads."

"Because I believe this, I have proposed creation of a $100,000,000 veterans housing fund, set up on a revolving basis. When you have a housing shortage you don't want conversation about it—you want homes built. It is as simple as that," Van Wagoner said. "I believe the state can erect homes for sale for a price ranging between five or six thousand dollars. I believe a small down payment, probably 10 per cent of the total price, and the balance bearing an interest rate at one or one and one-half per cent, is a proposition worth serious consideration of homeless veterans. I do not believe all veterans want to buy homes at this time. But they still need housing. Under my housing program I have provided for the erection of apartments for rental purposes, at nominal rental charges."

"Let me make clear the fact that I regret the necessity of our state government entering into the field of home-building. However, private builders have so far forfeited their obligation in meeting this critical problem. The first concern of the state government is the people it represents. These homes must be built, and, if I am returned to the governor's office November 5, I promise you on my solemn word of honor that they will be built."

"Further, when these young men and women went off to war they took with them talents and aptitudes developed to a high degree in the service. It is clear that their training makes them unfit for the lesser jobs which many of them gave up at the outbreak of the conflict. They do not want just a job—but they want jobs suitable to their abilities which hold greater promise for the future. To effect this, I am advocating creation of a veterans' employment service, administered by veterans, with this task as its primary responsibility."

Priority For Veterans
"I believe, too, that the State of Michigan owes a special debt to our disabled men. Supplementary allowances to veterans existing on pensions is certainly not an excessive request. In my book, we can never do enough for the disabled veterans, regardless of what we contributed," Van Wagoner said. "The veteran needs automobiles, household equipment, and many other articles which too often today are going to the highest bidder. It is a sad commentary on our treatment of the war veteran today that the men and women who returned home to try and rebuild their lives as civilians must compete for things which should be readily available to them. I propose that one-third of our automobiles be set aside for purchase by veterans. As a necessary precaution, I include the provision that no trade-in be required to make this purchase. Similar provision must be made for other articles likewise needed by these men and women."

"It has been an inspiring thing to me that I have had the loyal and enthusiastic support of many veterans of World War II in this campaign. Their ideas and their spirit have been of real value, and I would like to see men of their caliber drawn into the government of the State of Michigan."

"To encourage the participation of our youth in public life, I am advocating and will work for reduction of the voting age in Michigan to 18 years. The young men considered old enough to fight are not asking for anything unreasonable when they demand the right to vote at the age of 18," Van Wagoner continued.

"Getting back to the question of housing, I would like to point out that I have likewise advocated the establishment of a Michigan housing authority. This is a step which should have been taken earlier by the government to cope with a problem which is not of recent origin."

"As an illustration of the work which such an authority could have rendered the people of this state, I cite the equipment needs of our Upper Peninsula loggers. With lumber for the construction of 100,000 homes available, it is unfortunate that no strong state agency has been available to expedite the solution of this equipment problem. Lumber in the woods is scant comfort to homeless men and women. It is my hope that such a housing authority could grapple with our needs on a long-range, scientific basis. We have got to call a halt to the irresponsible and confused handling of an important issue so vital to the lives of our citizens."

Doyle Attacks Sigler
Other Van Wagoner proposals were the formation of an economic council for the Upper Peninsula; the change to "a new and more commonsense liquor policy"; and a conservation program aimed at safeguarding resources on which rests the security of the tourist business.

Atty. Thurman B. Doyle of Menominee, candidate for attorney general on the Democratic ticket, assailed Kim Sigler, Republican gubernatorial nominee, as a "false crusader."

"If, as a mere candidate, Mr. Sigler requires three armed guards, I view with alarm the unhappy prospect, and the unlikely prospect, of ever having him as governor of the state of Michigan," Doyle said after reviewing expenditures of the graft grand jury while Sigler was its prosecutor.

"Yes, I repeat, a sad and ugly chapter was written into the annals of Michigan law enforcement when this aspirant for the governorship held sway in the graft grand jury."

"Before the outraged gaze of every decent and respectable lawyer in the state of Michigan, the paid testimony of a confessed briber formed the core of the prosecution. Before the bewildered eyes of the public, immunity was granted to this arch conspirator for the services of his testimony against the small offender," Doyle said.

"Adding insult to injury, this sorry tale was exaggerated and distorted for political purposes to win the Republican gubernatorial nomination for this deposed prosecutor.

"Utilizing tactics perfected before his ouster, this false crusader conducted a vicious and shameful campaign against the three honorable men of integrity he faced in the Republican primary," Doyle continued.

Further in his talk Doyle described the Republican nominee as "a master at the art of innuendo and an expert at showmanship," and said that "as an attorney with a high regard for the noble history of his profession, it has been an unpleasant duty for me to tell the people here today a small part of the sorry record compiled by the Republican candidate for governor during his tenure as special grand jury prosecutor."

Fewer Veterans Get Compensation

Spencer C. Mathison, veteran claims examiner for the Michigan Unemployment Commission, announced yesterday the number of veterans now drawing service-men's readjustment allowance in Delta county has decreased to about one-third the number that were drawing the "52-20 Club" allowance during the peak period reached a few months after V-J Day.

The sharp decline in the number of veterans drawing the $20 a week allowance, Mr. Mathison stated, is not, as one might expect, due to the veterans having drawn the entire 52 weeks authorized them under the G. I. Bill of Rights. This decline in the number drawing the allowance at present is due to the fact that many veterans have either on their own or through the USES secured suitable employment while many others are taking advantage of the educational benefits under the G. I. Bill by transferring from readjustment allowance to subsistence allowance. A survey of the 797 veterans still drawing the readjustment allowance in Delta county taken for week ending October 6, 1946, reveals that:

182 or 22.8% have received 1-10 weeks.
201 or 25.2% have received 11-20 weeks.
178 or 22.3% have received 21-30 weeks.
144 or 18.1% have received 31-40 weeks.
92 or 11.6% have been filing for

41 or more weeks, and if they continue, they will receive the maximum of 52 weeks.

Mr. Mathison further stated that many of the veterans that are at present receiving their allowance were at one time or other, since being discharged from the service employed, and in turn laid off from work or had to leave off their control. At the time of the survey, Mr. Mathison concludes, only 4 veterans have drawn their 52nd week.

$25 REWARD IS OFFERED

Destruction Of Power Line Insulators Serious Matter

A reward of $25 will be paid by the Upper Michigan Power and Light company for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons guilty of destroying the company's power line insulators or other equipment.

"Thursday evening's power interruption was caused by the willful destruction of three insulators by rifle fire on the power lines tying together No. 2 and 3 power plants," E. F. Zuehlke, power company superintendent, said yesterday. "Several weeks ago, eight insulators on the South Ford River line were destroyed in the same manner. Fortunately, in both cases material for repair work was at hand."

"It is not the cost of the material involved," Zuehlke continued, "but it is almost impossible to purchase insulators and some other equipment. In addition, the destruction of insulators could create a condition that might cause death, as well as inconvenience to a whole community because of the stoppage of power service."

The meeting will be resumed at 1:30 with an educational program directed by Ben E. Knauss, president of the U. P. association. With State Senator George Gierbach presiding, Judge Robert Wright, of Ironwood, will speak at the evening dinner.

In addition to association members, county health directors, sanitary inspectors, supplymen and friends of the organization are expected to attend the conference.

Library Adventure

By Arnold Mulder

IS RUSSIAN literature about to flower into satire? Will the literary genius of that country presently express itself in some such way because all other normal ways are barred?

Those are questions that might well give the Russian authorities pause. For satire is a deadly weapon, much more to be feared than direct attack. A frontal assault can be guarded against and prepared for; the indirect attack of satire has done its deadly work before its victims know what has struck them.

Recently the Russian governmental authorities issued new directives to Russian writers and artists. Whatever they write or whatever work of art they produce, it must contribute to the "revolution." If it does not do that it is regarded as "anti-revolutionary" and is condemned accordingly. To be "anti-revolutionary" in any form in Russia is a deadly crime. Writers who wish to keep their heads on their shoulders will try to evade such a charge.

But in the whole history of mankind no government has ever been strong enough permanently to control expression. The writers have always found a way to say what is in their hearts, in spite of the government or the devil. Their most common method has been satire. Barred by governmental censorship to say outright what they felt they have turned to the indirect method of satire. Nothing seems more likely than that Russian literature will eventually do the same thing. For Russians are as unwilling as any other type to let the government dictate what they shall write and what they shall leave unsaid.

In the eighteenth century the English government took it upon itself to tell people what to write. Daniel Defoe, who later became famous as the author of "Robinson Crusoe," was burning with a desire to tell the government how stupid it was but Defoe also was rather anxious to keep out of jail. He belonged to the dissenting church and he wanted to shout from the housetops that the government had no right to persecute that church.

He hit on the device of seeming to agree with the government, but carrying its edicts to such extremes that they defeated themselves. Sure, he said with a straight face, all dissenters ought to be suppressed. They should not be allowed in England. But the government should go much further than merely putting dissenters in the pillory or in jail. Why not cut off their heads and thus rid the country of those trouble makers?

Defoe meant exactly the opposite but he completely fooled his government. In time, when the intent of the satire was discovered, it got him into trouble. But it has served to hold up to scorn for more than two centuries the stupidities of the government it satirized, and that is no small achievement.

There are so many other illustrations in the history of literature of the same thing that it would be tedious to list them all.

Will Russian genius turn to the weapon of satire? The question almost answers itself. Genius always has done so under similar conditions. But in the broadest sense they are displaying the same stupidity that arbitrary government has always shown. They think they can control human thinking, an impossibility. Sooner or later a Russian genius will appear who will hold the "Revolution" itself up to the deadly ridicule of satire. It seems certain that Russian literature will take such a turn, at least if the history of satire means anything.

KILLED COW; PAYS $100
Iron Mountain—Arthur Hendrickson, 27, Route 1, Norway, and Gerald Beauchamp, 26, 548 Fourteenth street, Norway, arrested Tuesday afternoon by Cpl. Jack Carstensen and Trooper Jack Belanger, of the state police, pleaded guilty yesterday, when arraigned before Police Justice Dan J. Corry, in Marinette, to larceny of a cow, and each paid a fine of $50 and costs.

The men, who waived extradition following their arrest and were turned over to Sheriff, Edward O'Hearn, of Marinette county, admitted killing the registered Holstein heifer, valued at $100, in a pasture off highway US-8 in Niagara township. The heifer, which had been dressed out, was recovered at the home of Beauchamp.

Basic Virtue Texts Endorsed By Pastor

Louisville, Ky.—What a Louisville pastor wants taught in the public schools is the "basic virtues"—not "religion."

The pastor, Dr. George Swann of the Edenside Christian church here, emphasizes the difference because, he says, he doesn't want the public to misunderstand the purpose of a campaign he is conducting to introduce textbooks on character into the schools.

The campaign has included picketing of schools. "All I'm asking is that students be taught about the virtues and vices on which Jew, Catholic, Protestant and others are agreed," he says. "That is not denominational religion."

Dr. Swann says the necessary textbooks for a character-building program are not yet written but could be compiled quickly and easily.

The pastor suggests that character-building stories should be included in a reasonable bulk of reading in the early grades, followed by required books of that nature in every other grade until school is finished. In later grades, the books need to be in definition and discussion form, he says.

"I taught four years and have been preaching a long time," says Dr. Swann, "and by interest grows in studying the exact meaning and application of the virtues. Ask someone what is the true meaning of patience, for example, and see if he knows."

Now Is the Time

THE action of 14 Escanaba meat dealers to join their voices for the removal of OPA control of beef and veal is indicative of the trend throughout the country. The dealers know that the present meat famine cannot be remedied without meat decontrol and unless it is remedied, the dealers will be out of business.

There is little room to doubt that the administration would move quickly to end meat controls except for one thing—the approaching election. If meat is ever to be decontrolled, now is the time to do it when the fall livestock marketing season is here. President Truman and his administration cohorts want to keep price controls in force until after election for purely political reasons. For one thing they do not want to admit that the OPA control program, which is the heart of the entire domestic economic policy, has been a Democratic mistake.

Meat prices will rise following decontrol. They did in July when controls were removed but they were beginning to drop when the control lid was slapped back on. The important thing to remember, however, is that prices cannot remain high while there is a flood of animals moving to market and so, obviously, the time to decontrol meat is when there is a backlog of animals on the ranges, as there is today.

Local meat dealers who are asking for meat decontrol do not like high meat prices. It is not good for their business because many of the customers blame the local butcher for high meat prices, even though the responsibility is not theirs. A flood of meat at higher prices, though, is better than no meat at all and the high levels cannot be sustained indefinitely. They will find their proper price level under a free market and that is what the entire meat industry, including local butchers, is striving for. In the long run, it is best for the customers, too.

Not All Clover

MANY families have moved in recent years to the outskirts of cities to escape the smoke and clamor of the industrial center, only to find that it was not all clover after they got there.

In going beyond the city limits out in the rural townships, these homeowners found lower taxes and more space for gardens. But living on the fringe also has its liabilities as well as its compensations.

Lower taxes usually mean fewer public services for the fringe resident. They may not have sewage, water and gas services. If his house catches fire, he may be without the protection that is afforded the person who pays taxes on his home within a city.

Another form of protection for the city resident is zoning. The person who moved to the outskirts to enjoy something like country life may wake up someday to find a slaughter house or soap factory being erected next door. Since none of these fringe developments is within municipal corporate limits, they are not subject to building codes. There are the other things that one misses when he moves to the country. It gives one a better understanding why the city dweller must pay higher taxes.

A Huge Market

SOUTH America offers a potential market for vast amounts of American goods of every kind. Dr. James W. Montgomery, Latin American authority, said in a recent address to the Executives club at Grand Rapids.

Dr. Montgomery said Brazil alone will spend five billion dollars within the next decade on new and used machinery alone. Other South American countries also will need a proportionate amount of goods for their commercial and industrial expansion programs.

He characterized South America as our greatest frontier—the largest opportunity for economic development that the United States has ever had. Unstable political conditions present obstacles at the present time, but he expressed his belief that these difficulties eventually will be surmounted.

We have never done as well as the British and Germans in cultivating the South Americans with a view toward getting their trade. During World War II we became more closely allied with our Latin neighbors, but we cannot hold these wartime-gained advantages indefinitely. Cultivating and retaining the friendship of the South Americans is a permanent job. We must keep everlastingly at it if friendly trade relations are to continue in the face of keen postwar competition from Great Britain and other nations.

Decentralization

THE grouping of factory after factory in a large industrial center is an unhealthy concentration of production, Henry J. Taylor, economist and author, said in a recent radio broadcast program sponsored by General Motors.

Mr. Taylor added industries showing leadership can help in relieving industrial concentration by investigating every sound local opportunity to decentralize their production, making as many parts of their products in as many different places as possible, rather than in one central location.

"According to Mr. Taylor, there are 3,070 counties in the United States. But crowded into only eight or ten counties are the people and plants that produce something like a quarter of all the industrial output in our nation. These counties are represented by Chicago, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Kansas City, Buffalo and a few other large cities.

Several large industrial corporations are already decentralizing operations. More of this will be done when construction materials are available. There are definite advantages to the spreading out of industrial activity. The cost of living for workers is lower in the smaller communities. Workers also have a greater opportunity to use their leisure time for work in gardens, hunting, fishing and other outdoor recreational activities if they work and live in a small town.

There are limits to decentralization of any industry, however. Many industrial units must be large, must be concentrated, because of the location of raw materials. No decentralization is to the public good if it forces increases in the product's selling price. But there are many industries that are not affected by these factors, and they are able to locate all or part of their operations away from the crowded industrial centers. Industrial decentralization, much talked about in the prewar years, now has become a reality, and promises new growth and wealth for many small communities that long felt that modern civilization has passed them by.

McKEIGHAN WANTED

(Detroit News)

The Dehnke Macomb County prosecutions produce the sorry spectacle in which four former members of the Michigan State Police confessed their corruption by gamblers who operated slot machines in the county for years.

Bribe givers and bribe takers, tempters and tempted, class alike before the law—but the moral guilt rests heaviest on givers.

These former State policemen served well and long in their service, rising to ranking posts. Their good names are gone; their careers are blasted.

While we don't know the circumstances of the gamblers and their tools, we dare say the profits of their operations mean they and theirs will be well fixed, no matter what prosecution leads to for them.

William H. McKeighan, a report says, has become a hotel owner in Florida.

The debauchment of the State troopers gives the sharpest possible point to the Michigan demand on Florida for McKeighan's return to face the charge that he acted for the gamblers and paid the bribes.

In the name of justice, for the sakes of the four who were good servants of law and order in Michigan, let no effort be spared to bring McKeighan back to face the fair and impartial trial which, since Judge Dehnke will preside, is assured him.

NICKEL AN OUNCE

(Christian Science Monitor)

Wily old Uncle Sam steps out in the role of super-salesman and public benefactor today with the lowering of airmail rates to five cents an ounce. The Post Office Department tells us that one can now send a one-ounce letter at that rate to any point in the United States or between its outlying possessions. Under the previous rate, the cost of sending a letter from Puerto Rico to Guam was 43 cents a half ounce. For a full ounce the cost was 86 cents. Now the letter will go for a nickel.

Both the Government and the air lines anticipate a tremendous upsurge in postal traffic. It should stimulate much greater expansion of the aviation industry, too. Time was when the New York subway was the last word in low-cost communications: "Ride all day for a nickel." Today Uncle Sam has the last word. The new air-mail rate—Puerto Rico to Guam, 9,200 miles, for a nickel an ounce—doesn't leave Father Knickerbocker so much to talk about.

A wealthy alumnus gave a college 1000 volumes of humor. And with so many freshmen on the campus, too.

Canning season doesn't need to worry the fellow who really works.

WHAT IS THE ORIGIN?

(Scrapbook Item)

Louisville: Have been trying without success to learn just what is meant by "Pop goes the weasel." I know it's the title of a song, but how can anyone imagine a weasel's going "pop"?—E. C. B.

Answer: After a rather long search, I have come across the surprising information that the "weasel" of the rollicking little song is actually not a weasel (the animal), nor does it ever go "pop!"

"Pop goes the Weasel!" became popular in London in 1852. The song had an almost endless number of verses, most of which were ribald accounts of "the way that money goes" in Saturday night carousings. Following each verse was the chorus:

Up and down the City Road,
In and out the Eagle,
That's the way the money goes—

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—The loud outcry against President Truman exceeds anything we have heard in a long time. It may be even louder and angrier than the barrages directed at FDR in the long-ago days of The New Deal.

Childs

There is about it a savage quality. There, we seem to say, we've found the culprit, the cause of all our troubles, and now let's run him to earth.

Of course, this is an election year. That explains part of the noise, perhaps most of it. But there is one special fact about the current barrage in the press and on the radio that deserves notice.

Some of the most savage and sneering attacks come from the same sources that pilloried Roosevelt. Yet the attacks on Truman have a different angle. The attackers do not accuse him, as they did Roosevelt, of being a strong man, an ambitious man bent on dictatorship. Quite on the contrary, they attack him because he has not been strong enough, because he has not asserted himself.

—PRICE CONTROL CRISIS—

That should make us, as Americans, do a little thinking. We should start thinking not of individuals, weak or strong, but of the system of government under which we live. It is a government of divided powers which was designed to hold together a loose federation of agricultural states, with a minimum of power reserved for the central authority. It was designed for an age in which the chief operating instruments were the human back, the horse and the wheel.

Let's see, for a moment, how this government has functioned during the year since the war ended. Perhaps the chief domestic crisis in that time has been the crisis over price control.

Here, as all the polls showed, a decided majority of the voters were in favor of retaining effective controls. That was President Truman's stand. By the votes of the Republican opposition and by the defection of members of his own party, he was defeated.

Under a parliamentary system of government, such as prevails in Canada, the Scandinavian countries and Great Britain, Truman would have gone out of office on that issue. He and the members of his administration would have gone to the country on the clear-cut question of whether there would or would not be honest, effective price control.

Under our system, the price-control fight ended in a stalemate that was neither one thing nor the other. Truman stayed in office and the voters had no opportunity, at the time of crisis, to decide whether they wanted to continue an administration 13 years in power.

Under our constitution, Harry Truman is president for the next two years, short of an act which would precipitate the scandalous, disrupting process of impeachment. How are we to behave during those two years? Are we to keep his head held through the hole in the canvas while we throw baseballs, coconuts, pop bottles and harder things at him?

That is a very dangerous sport to indulge in at a time when so much turns on the decisions taken by the United States. It is a reckless, heedless, self-destructive bit of indulgence worthy of a primitive tribe. Yet some Republicans talk as though that is the game they intend to play.

—WALLACE BACKED BRADLEY—
In the attacks on Truman for his sins of omission and commission, there is the implication that we have an infinite number of men of genius who could, in the presidency, make the American system of divided powers function. Roosevelt made it work in crisis and in war, although there were intervals in between when he was as helpless as any president has ever been.

Granted Truman's blunders in the Wallace affair and his mistakes again and again on other occasions. Yet he has done many courageous things. He has dared to economize in an election year. He has backed Gen. Omar N. Bradley, an honest administrator, against the professional veterans' lobby.

The problems at the end of the war were so overwhelming, the conflicts so deep-rooted, that it is hard to see how any president could have avoided trouble. But it is time to stop counting on the genius, the strong man, who can fight his way through the intricacies of constitutional government.

Can we, as a great world power, afford a collapsible government?

Pop goes the weasel!

A footnote on page 510 of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" explains that, "The Eagle was a music-hall, in which drinks were sold, on the City Road, London. The weasel was a tool used by hatters, often pawned on Saturday night, 'pop' being equivalent to 'heck'." Merriam Webster's also explains "pop" as British slang for "Act of pawing; state of being pawed."

So now we know (and I am, perhaps, the most surprised one of all) that "Pop Goes the Weasel" is not an American folk tune, and that the furtive little animals do not have the disconcerting habit of constantly going "pop!"

Q. How did the Diesel engine get its name?—T. P.
A. The engine is named for its inventor, Rudolf Diesel, of Munich, Germany (1859-1913). He perfected the engine in 1900.

The correct German pronunciation of Diesel is: DEE-zl. However, in America there is an increasing tendency to pronounce the name with the hissing sound of "s", thus: DEE-s'l.

POLICE DEPARTMENT—The Escanaba community has been described in a Federal Bureau of Investigation report as requiring "less than average police protection."

Dunathan

The FBI survey as of April 30, 1946, which is not only a little old at this time but is also erroneous at this date. According to the FBI survey as of April 30, Escanaba had 13 policemen (it now has 15) and has an average of 0.87 policemen per 1,000 population. (It now has 1 policeman per 1,000 population.)

But that FBI survey story has gone the rounds of more newspapers than you can shake a stick at, and its publication at this late date would lead many persons to believe that Escanaba is a model community without crime—and without the need of an average-size police department. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Escanaba is no better and no worse than other cities of its size, and it needs as large a police department as other cities.

OUR REQUIREMENTS—While there may be some necessity for national statistics such as the FBI presents, one wonders if the FBI might not be employed in more effectively in other lines of work. Certainly the publication of statistics several months old do not give the correct current information, and may mislead the public.

In Escanaba for instance, some citizens might be led to believe the city "requires less than average police protection." The city has added two policemen since the FBI survey was made. Considering the amount of work to be done, the department could use several more.

THE LITTLE THINGS—For the benefit of those who may believe this column is inspired by occasional contacts with police department personnel, it should be understood that it has not been requested by anyone in the department. No one connected with that department has complained of the amount of work to be done, nor has anyone suggested that this article be written.

But even a casual look through the police record book will indicate the hundred and one chores the policeman is called upon to do. There was a time when people were more inclined to settle their own little differences, or perhaps just mind their own affairs more than they are today.

The department daily receives telephone calls asking for a policeman to: 1—Tell the neighbors that their children should not throw acorns; 2—Have the policeman pick up a stray dog in the alley; 3—Find out why Mrs. Doakes screamed last night; 4—Rescue the family cat from the elm tree in the front yard; 5—Tell the neighbors that they must stop backing their car into the fence; 6—Find little Johnny or Mary, who is lost, lost, lost.

AND THE BIG—The above is just a sample of a typical day's little things in the life of a policeman. There are many more, all time-consuming, all important to the persons involved, and all demanding a policeman's immediate attention. If three children are lost at one (sometimes there are more) each set of parents wonders

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1936

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, will be the principal speaker at the US-2 and US-41 highway dedication program luncheon to be held at the Sherman hotel tomorrow.

Carl Earl Johnson, 28, 417 South Ninth street, passed away this morning at the local hospital after suffering for three weeks from a stomach disorder.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Beauchamp, 215 South 16th street, are the parents of a son, seven and a half pounds, born Oct. 9 at St. Francis hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lahaie, 1108 South 14th street, celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary recently. A family reunion was arranged in honor of the occasion. A son was born Saturday, Oct. 10 at St. Francis hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sopina, 503 First avenue south.

20 Years Ago—1926

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. O. I. Bandeen, this is the second son in the family.

Miss Luella Schram returned to Sheboygan Sunday evening after a week end visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Schram.

Mrs. Karl Woodhall who has been a guest at the A. Woodhall home in Gladstone has returned to her home in Walla Walla, Wash.

why the police take so long.

It is required that policemen be at the scene of a fire, keep a check on traffic, investigate last night's burglary and attempt to prevent another one tonight. They make investigations of liquor places, handle traffic where large numbers of cars create a hazard, police large public gatherings. They give driving and other tests to applicants for car operator's licenses, and also issue dog and bicycle licenses. If they make an arrest they must be in court at the time the respondent is arraigned, and there are reports to make out and records to be maintained.

PEOPLE CAN HELP—This column has occasionally been critical of the Escanaba police department. So have some of the citizens in the city.

Perhaps a little consideration would be beneficial in properly evaluating the responsibility of the individual—as well as the police department. For one thing Escanaba motorists could drive more carefully and more courteously, which would end much of the necessity for excessive police surveillance.

They could look for their lost children in the house and the neighborhood before telephoning the police—and they could call back if they do find them after notifying the police to start a search for their child. Often the police spend an hour or more looking for a child who was found by the parents a few minutes after the call was placed with the department.

And Escanaba business men might form the practice of locking their shop doors when they leave at night. Too many of them have the habit of leaving doors unlocked, to be discovered late at night by the patrolman who then must notify the proprietor to determine whether it was burglary or carelessness.

LONGER DAYS

Our days are growing longer, due to the earth rotating more slowly all the time. But this amounts to only about one second in every 10,000 years.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—Standard Oil of New Jersey recently took about 40 New York, Boston and Washington newsmen on a junket to the oil fields of Texas and Louisiana.

Pearson

While in Texas, the party visited the giant King ranch, largest in the United States, owned in part by Richard Kleburg, former Texas congressman.

After extensive trips over the million-acre cattle domain, where the writers were shown every breed of cattle imaginable, methods of raising, grazing, roping and branding, an elaborate dinner was served at the 60-room, air-conditioned ranch house.

Good liquor flowed freely, and the main dish was roast beef, the like of which has not been seen in eastern markets since 1939.

At the conclusion of the gargantuan feast, there were brief talks by the ranch foreman, followed by the "piece de resistance" of the oratory—an outspoken warning from Ex-Congressman Kleburg that there would be a "famine of meat in all the cities of the land if Washington and its crackpot theorists do not soon quit making a political football of the American belly."

There is plenty of beef on the hoof on the ranges of the nation, Kleburg declared, but, he warned, the cattlemen of the country are determined that beef will remain on the range until it can move to market in a manner that is profitable and satisfactory to the ranchers.

Asked later, by a visiting newsmen, if he meant that cattle raisers were definitely striking, Kleburg snapped, "why not? strikes are popular and seem to have the approval of the administration."

Kleburg's warning might be considered the bluster of a defeated congressman who is simply sore, but for the fact that he is regarded by cattlemen as the "King Pin" of the industry.

He is withholding his beef, every head of it prime steers, and the little fellows as well as the big ones are taking their cue from "Dick" Kleburg.

The King ranch has ample financial resources for a "strike," as the Humble Oil company, affiliate of Standard, is now producing oil on the ranch, and it is estimated that Kleburg royalties will run close to $15,000,000 for this year.

NOTE—Kleburg was ousted from congress by angry Texas voters when it was brought out that he had required three teen-age boys employed in the capital to pay salary kickbacks to his office. Kleburg, one of the wealthiest men in congress, had helped get the boys jobs as ushers and page boys. In return, they paid about half their salary back to his office.

—PUBLIC BE DAMNED—

Livest member of the office of war mobilization and reconversion advisory committee is petite Anna Rosenberg. Things always happen when Anna is around, as AFL President Bill Green, CIO President Phil Murray, and Eric Johnston, ex-president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, learned the other day.

Green and Murray were talking about how wonderful it would be when the country returned to "free collective bargaining." Suddenly, Mrs. Rosenberg barged in with some ideas of her own.

"You gentlemen talk a great deal about collective bargaining," she said, tartly, "but what you mean is collective bludgeoning. You think about yourselves first, instead of the American public. The consumer is always the loser in your battles." Looking at Eric Johnston, she added that industry was equally at fault.

"If all you gentlemen considered the public first, we wouldn't have all these costly strikes. There's absolutely no sense, in a great country like ours, for labor and industry to be ganging up on each other and choking the life out of the public and each other.

"Until labor and industry both learn the rules and begin thinking of the public in collective bargaining we will have no real progress and industrial peace in this country.

—HEFTY HARRY MOVES—

There was a mild "shake-up" at the White House recently that has the tongues of presidential personnel wagging deliciously. Gen. Harry Vaughn, the president's corpulent military aide, was booted out of his office.

In the room where Hefty Harry once held forth close to the president on the west side of the White House you will now find Ex-Navy Capt. Clark Clifford, who functions as special counsel to Truman. Vaughn was transferred to the east wing in an office next to Admiral Leahy, one block from Truman. And to say that he is sore is putting it mildly. He is sizzling.

Insiders credit George Schoeneman, executive administrative assistant to Truman and a red-hot foe of Vaughn, with calling the signals. Schoeneman has a lot to say about who occupies what office at the White House and it is no secret that he resented Vaughn take over the former office of Judge Sam Rosenman without asking anybody.

Several times Schoeneman has tried to evacuate Hefty Harry, but Vaughn stubbornly refused to budge.

"Damned if I'm going to leave this office," he announced belligerently. "I've done all the moving I'm going to around here."

However, move he did when Clifford showed up, fresh out of the navy. Insiders report that Truman himself had to "suggest" the shift before his military aide retreated, but that is small balm to Vaughn's outraged feelings.

Q. Does the six months death gratuity pay include allowances paid to commissioned officers such as those for quarters, subsistence, etc.?

A. No.

Q. Why does vapor sometimes form into clouds and sometimes rest upon the earth as mist or fog?

A. This depends on the temperature of the air. When the surface of the earth is warmer than the air, the vapor of the earth (being condensed by the chill air) becomes mist or fog. But, when the air is warmer than the earth, the vapor rises through the air, and becomes clouds.

Q. Are there any flags which are allowed to fly night and day?

PAUL BUNYAN BOOK PRINTED

Stanley D. Newton Of
Sault Ste. Marie
Is Author

"Paul Bunyan of the Great Lakes," a book written by Stanley D. Newton of Sault Ste. Marie, is now on sale at bookstores throughout the Upper Peninsula.

The volume is the first Paul Bunyan publication for adults in many years. Mr. Newton tells readers in his foreword to expect some "whoppers," and they are not disappointed. Exaggeration is the primary genius of American humor, and the Northern Peninsula and other lumberjacks who have depicted Paul Bunyan for the author have demonstrated, in this book, their outstanding capacity for subliming and soaring invention.

Paul Bunyan was born, according to the Newton narrative, in 1849. He passed on, or up, in 1890. There are men now living who knew Paul, worked with him, and borrowed his eating tobacco and snos, or snuff. More than one of them was on hand when Paul took his dramatic leave of the world at the Pictured Rocks, says Newton.

Paul Bunyan's Immortal Crew
Among the characters and authorities associated with Paul Bunyan in the job of logging are the northern pines were Paul's girl Tiny. Sourdough Sam and the camp cook, Big Ole the blacksmith. Joe Kadunk the second cook, the famous three hundred cookies, Johnny Inkslinger and the camp clerk. Forty Jones the walking boss, Chris Crosshaul the straw boss, Bill Half-a-day, Ojibway Indian lumberjack songster, and One-Eye LaRue the barn boss, who came to a sad end.

Other actors in the Paul Bunyan drama are Axlward August, the cap gardener whose whiskers turned green in the spring; Truthful Tim, the van tender and relator of many of the stories; and Sniffy McGurk and several thousand scrappy northern Michigan lumberjacks. Babe, the big blue ox, Benny, the off ox, and Elmer, the moose terrier enjoy extended and honorable mention.

The Wonderful Pivot Hotel
There are chapters on the great Tahquamenon Swamp, Paul's gallstone operation, the Pivot Hotel, Paul's logging railroad, the great pole-sitting contest, the Paul Bunyan echo, Sourdough Sam 'the stummick robber,' as the lumberjacks called. Joe Kadunk's blueberry pie and more than 20 others. Many of the doings are laid in the familiar surroundings of Sault Ste. Marie and neighboring territory, St. Ignace, Escanaba, Manistique, Marquette and Ironwood.

The book is published by Packard and company, 537 South Dearborn street, Chicago. They are planning a Russian edition and other issues for which Mr. Newton's copy has been electrolyzed. Paper and cover material shortages have delayed the first edition for weeks.

The volume is offered by the author and the publishers as an authentic presentation of American folklore, gathered at first hand in northern Great Lakes territory. It also makes a healthy bid for a place in the extensive and varied gallery of American wit and humor.

"Paul Bunyan of the Great Lakes" is dedicated to Captain Joe Beach of Newberry and John Hunter of Hulbert, as well as to G. Harold Earle and Stewart Earle, founder of the Paul Bunyan museum at Blaney Park. One line of Paul's descent is traced to Russia, and the home is expressed that the book will help to some extent a better understanding between the United States and the U. S. R. R.

Chemical Cure For Malaria Reported

Chicago—A chemical that cures malaria instead of just suppressing it is reported to the medical profession through the columns of the Journal of the American Medical Association here today.

The chemical has been named pentaquine. During the secret wartime search for drugs to protect our fighting men against malaria after the quinine of the Dutch East Indies was lost, pentaquine was known as SN 13,276.

"Radical cure" of severe vivax malaria is achieved by pentaquine when given with quinine every four hours day and night for 14 days, Dr. R. F. Loeb, chairman of the Board for Coordination of Malarial Studies states in the report to doctors today.

In 16 out of 17 patients, the drug given in this way completely eradicated the disease. When given without quinine, pentaquine is only partially effective in preventing relapses.

Quality Becomes Top Goal In Frozen Foods

RAPIDLY EXPANDING industry has created frozen food shops.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

New York, Oct. 12.—Quick-freezing, the fast-growing marvel of the food industry, is learning its P's and Q's—particularly the Q for quality.

Rapidly expanding consumer demands have made the business a seeming Eldorado and has attracted bonanza exploiters who have paid little heed to quality. This get-rich-quick invasion has alarmed industry pioneers who favor largely upon quality of product, and led to increasing cries for standardization.

The trade is not under federal inspection except on a voluntary and incomplete basis. Canners, meat packers and most other food processors are under strict government quality controls, but frozen foods can be watched and prosecuted only for misbranding under the Pure Food and Drug Act. The packer's conscience is his only guide as long as he steers clear of misbranding. Thus, some new concerns market packages with no reference to weight, grade or preparation instructions.

What a Survey Showed.

Among recent developments: focussing attention on the situation was a study by the Consumer Union, moves by the New York State Food Merchants Association and the Western Frozen Foods Processors Association for quality standardization, and blunt demand by leaders and trade publications within the industry itself.

Indicative of the quality flexibility was the consumers' sampling survey. The survey showed that specimens of both frozen fresh fruits and vegetables as well as prepared dishes varied widely in taste, quality and appearance, not only among brands, but among samples from a single brand.

The frozen food field is being invaded, the study concluded, "by many newcomers with little 'know-how' and less conscience."

G. J. Hucker, secretary of the Institute of Food Technology, an international technical research group, pins a "great need" for standards on "careless packers" who have entered the field in the last few years, and adds: "every industry goes through this when it is new."

Frozen Meals Cited.

Technologists like Dr. Donald K. Tressler, of Westport, Conn., stress that the greatest need for careful development in the frozen food line is in the prepared dishes.

Norman Holden, 17, Goes Hunting And Fishing In Alaska

Shooting a 900 pound brown bear and catching a 34-pound Dolly Varden trout were two thrilling experiences for Norman Holden, American Fork, Utah, high school senior and former Escanaba student who spent the past summer in Alaska.

Norman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Holden, who resided on South 14th street for several years. Mr. Holden, who was manager of the Kresge store here, is now associated with Butler Brothers at their San Francisco branch office.

Young Holden, 17, has been employed by the Columbia Lumber company, Sitka, Alaska, during the summer vacation. Due to the maritime strike he was unable to secure passage home in time to start the school term, so went to work with the logging crew of the Hood Bay Logging company while waiting for reservations.

This meant sailing on the logging boat about 70 miles from Sitka, which took him into a remote and isolated section of the country, and to his delight nearer the scenes of the stories he had heard from the natives of that region. Stories that are a thrill to every real hunter and fisherman.

On his second day at the logging camp high up in the mountains he shot a brown bear that measured 12 feet from tip to tip, the weight was guessed between 900 and 1000 pounds. While there he also caught the big trout and has hooked salmon that are worth writing home about.

Little Man's Prospects.

One opinion of big packers is given by Edwin E. Huddleson, vice-president of Stokely-Van Camp, who predicts that in 10 years the big and long-established processors, such as canners, will have taken over 90 percent of the frozen food business.

Another facet of opinion was given to the national packers association by Edwin T. Gibson, vice president of General Foods Corporation, which was the firm to pioneer the business and which has set standards for its own products that the trade generally accepts as extremely high.

"If shoddy goods provoke the public into voicing its disappointment, government agencies will pick up their ears and then you'll have restrictive laws—you'll have new bureaus in local, state or national governments and needless interference in your operations. Either industry polices itself or it suffers additional government supervision."

Right Togs Help Conquer Sniffles

BY ALICIA HART

Before that No. 1 health menace—the common cold—gets in its first fall licks, begin your conquering strategy by starting out for the day dressed for the weather. Becoming either chilled or overheated in guess-they'll-do clothes makes you a push-over for the sniffles.

Best way to cope with weather that blows hot and cold is to dress in clothes that can be shed or added to, as the need arises. Give a glum day the benefit of the doubt by carrying along your rubbers. Rubber toe guards for shoes stuffed into the pocket of a coat or bag are good health insurance to take out against the possible hazard of wet feet, which are high on the list of suspects as the cause of colds.

Begin right now to lay in a reserve of good health by eating more protective foods. Get enough sleep, and plan to get some exercise every day.

Kuharski-Wojeik
Nuptials Attended
By 1000 Guests

At one of the most largely attended weddings of the fall season, Miss Jeannie Wojcik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wojcik of LaBranche, became the bride of Raymond Kuharski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kuharski of Harris.

The ceremony was performed recently by the Rev. James G. Ward at St. Stephen's Episcopal church in Escanaba.

The bride chose a gown of traditional white, with lace forming the yoke of the satin bodice, and matching lace ruffles edging the marquisette skirt, which extended in a court train. A crown of orange blossoms held in place her full-length veil, which was also edged in lace. Her bouquet of mixed flowers was tied with shower streamers.

Mrs. Edward Gurosh, matron of honor, wore a gown which had a coral lace bodice and white marquisette skirt.

The three bridesmaids were Miss Helen Wojcik, Miss Theresa Bartosz, and Miss Lottie Mroczkowski. They wore identical gowns of chateau lace and white marquisette.

Karen Joy Barr, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. Her gown was styled like the one worn by the matron of honor. Bouquets of snapdragons, baby breath, and gardenias were carried by the attendants.

Edward Kuharski, the bridegroom's brother, served as best man. Ushers were Joseph Guber and Michael Pach. The bridegroom's nephew, Dale Wrubel, was the ring-bearer.

1000 Guests Attend—More than a thousand guests attended the reception which was held at the Bark River Community Hall, where the bride cut the large tiered wedding cake. A wedding dinner was served there later.

Mrs. Wojcik, mother of the bride, appeared in a grey and white dress, and Mrs. Kuharski chose a blue print frock. Corsages of roses accented their costumes. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scott, Calumet; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harvey of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. George Ervo, Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Mroczkowski, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wrubel, Mrs. Mary Walker, Mrs. J. Eggnog In Shampoo Will Brighten Hair

How to obtain the brightening effects on the hair of an egg shampoo without lathering an uncooked omelette over your head is a feat cosmetic science helps you to put across.

A new, ready-prepared eggnog shampoo, containing the real ingredients in concentrated form, makes the egg as easy for the hair to take as a pleasant liquid soap. Two latherings of the stuff rubbed into hair like suds and rinsed off with tepid water, will free hair of dulling film like a fairy-tale princess freed of her thrall.

Women who use egg shampoo as subtle bleaches will like this one also for the other ingredients it contains to make the hair stay put and give it extra shine.

Armed Forces Converge On S. Dakota Pheasants

Despite great offensive rapidly approaching its zero hour, game officials are not at all worried about South Dakota's pheasant population owing the way of the buffalo and antelope.

Rapid City, S. D. (NEA)—The greatest movement of armed forces in America since the war starts with the opening of the famous South Dakota pheasant season Oct. 15.

More than 100,000 hunters from all sections converge upon comparatively small area renowned for its richly-plumaged ring-necked. Another 100,000 home-grown marksmen join forces with the outsiders in the biggest mass killing in history.

Something like 7,500,000 birds will be shot.

Several hundred thousand families dine on the finest meat that gun and the bird world can provide as the plains make another sizeable contribution toward the relief of the meat shortage.

This season is expected to be larger numerically than last, since millions of young men are out of the service itching to unlimber 12 gauges. Queries, which started flooding transportation offices as early as August, forecast a tremendous movement of hunters.

The 1944 Chinese ringneck or king pheasant census estimated 16,000,000 of the big birds in South Dakota.

Even if half the population should be killed again this fall, the hen pheasant is one of the greatest little mothers in the world. Give her a good nesting area, and she literally becomes a production factory for young chicks.

Between 1912 and 1917, the state planted 7000 pairs of ring-necks. Since that time, despite tons of ammunition burned by crack shots, the bird population soared into the millions.

The small grains, corn and sorghums of the nation's ringneck capital, plus deep winter snows, produce birds noted for weight and richness of plumage. It is not unusual at the opening of the long season to encounter several hundred in one flock.

The several hundred square miles around Rapid City, Huron and Pierre become for two months each autumn as cosmopolitan as New York or Hollywood.

There are dude ranches where prominent people obtain lodging for $150 a week. There are hotels, ranches and private homes where prices are within the average man's budget, great open spaces where anyone can pitch a tent or park a trailer.

The protracted season and quick turnover of hunters make accommodations not too difficult to obtain. Nor are all the gun-toters men. The crack of 16 and 20-gauges in the hands of women is becoming increasingly familiar.

Improved transportation, especially in the air, is expected to boost the already amazing statistics. The significance of new air service lies in the fact that it makes shooting a week-end pastime.

A hunter flying to Huron this fall will probably find his expenses running something like this as a minimum. A cab to a nearby lodge costs 75 cents. Lodging, meals, locker service per day, which includes having birds cleaned, picked, drawn and frozen, comes to $15. The charge for guide service per day per person is $5. An out-of-state license costs $20, and the assessment for packaging birds for shipment is $1.50.

The distance from Huron to Rapid City is 308 lonely miles with wild life outnumbering humans many fold.

Early in the season, the brilliantly-plumaged birds are found. The weather is usually quite warm. The birds grow wilder about the third week of the season, take to heavier cover. As the weather turns cold in November, they bunch together, hold well, and the hunting is still good. In winter, they come out to eat burdock seed from bushes clumped above the snow.

The vast pheasant population of South Dakota almost overshadows the fact that one of the country's finest flyways for Canadian honkers and northern mallard is along the Missouri River near Gettysburg. Honkers scaling 12 pounds are not uncommon, and the countryside abounds in grouse and Hungarian partridge, the latter protected by a closed season this year.

Length of season, hours when shooting is permissible and limits are left variable each year, so the commission may restrict or extend the sport according to how rapidly birds disappear. In certain counties the season may run longer than in others. An open season from Oct. 15 to Dec. 13 has been set this trip for 33 counties, but may be extended if conditions warrant. Last year the pheasant season was extended until March.

Noon to dark shooting will be legal this fall in the most favored counties with a limit of five per day of which two may be hens.

Distinguishing between a cock and a hen in the split second that they pop out of cover is one of the intricacies of the sport.

A book that could easily be classed among the nation's best sellers is the South Dakota Pheasant Guide, published in Madison.

Among many other things it tells how to cook and serve the most delicious meat that has ever adorned the tables of ancient pharaohs or modern lucky Americans.

ROUND HOMES WILL BE BUILT

Prefabricated Aluminum Houses Will Go On Market

Wichita, Kans.—Mass production of the round, prefabricated Fuller houses with the triangular rooms is scheduled for 1947. Herman Wolf, president of Fuller Houses, Inc., has announced.

Financing their manufacture has delayed the program. The unconventionality of the house makes necessary a longer period of examination and study before financing terms can be arranged, he stated. He expects, however, to receive approval for loans under Federal Housing Agency and the Veterans Administration.

This circular house, largely of aluminum and plastics, resembles somewhat a large umbrella with sidewalls dropping from the outer edges of the umbrella cover. It is supported by a center steel mast carrying a radiating framework near its top.

When outdoor tests of the first type of the Fuller house were made Mr. Wolf stated, certain "bugs" were discovered which are now being corrected. These do not alter the general structural plan of the building, but do provide a larger kitchen, an entrance to a bedroom direct from the center hall, and other changes to promote convenience.

The cost of the Fuller house, exclusive of land and utility connections is expected to be in the neighborhood of $6,500. The exact amount can not be fixed yet. No sample house has yet been erected at Wichita or elsewhere, for public inspection.

LOCAL FACTORY SOON TO GROW

Facilities Of Hiawatha Plant To Be Greatly Improved

Transfer of ownership this week of the Lindstrom Tool and Toy Company of Bridgeport, Conn., to a Brooklyn syndicate, has a definite bearing upon the interest of many Manistique residents because the Hiawatha Metal Products Company, of this city, is principally owned by the purchasers of the Bridgeport company.

Manuel Cohen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., head of the local company, is also head of the syndicate purchasing the Bridgeport plant and the two firms will be affiliated.

The Lindstrom company has been for the past forty years, one of the largest manufacturers in the country of mechanical toys, turning out such nationally known playthings as the climbing monkey, dancing dolls, all metal toy plows, tractors, steam rollers and scores of other novelties of the sort. It is also an outstanding producer of electric motors, and other electrical equipment as well as laminated discs and specialty steel precision articles. More than one million dollars is involved in the deal.

Mr. Cohen, in Manistique for a few hours Friday, stated that many of the tools and dies of the Bridgeport plant will be sent to Manistique, where the output of the plant will broaden with the manufacture of many lines—particularly a large variety of toys.

This will enable the Hiawatha plant to assume full scale production and greatly increase the scope of its operations.

VETS PONDER BONUS ISSUE

Question Will Be Main Order Of Business At Legion Meeting

Do veterans of World War II in the Manistique area favor a bonus, similar to the adjusted compensation granted veterans of World War I?

The question proved to be something of a stickler at Thursday night's meeting of the local post of the American Legion when a resolution was presented protesting against the action of the recent American Legion convention in San Francisco which turned thumbs down on the proposal.

The national convention's action in recommending that instead of cash the compensation be made in reduced income tax payments and in the immediate payment of terminal leave bonds, was declared unsatisfactory by many of those present.

It was pointed out that the Michigan delegation had been instructed to favor the bonus at the national convention, but whether or not they carried out these instructions, none present could say. It was unanimously agreed at the meeting that the matter should be left to a larger group of Legion members than were present at Monday night's meeting and that the question be made the main order of business at the next regular meeting which will be on Thursday evening, October 24.

Crippled Eskymos Meet Kingsford Here Today; Trojans Play At Norway

Red Sox Triumph, 6-3, Need Only One More Win To Wrap Up Series

INJURIES FORCE REVISED LINEUP

Belanger And Goymerac Out Of Action; Gardner Also Hurt

The Eskymos will present a revamped lineup today when they meet the Kingsford Flyers at the Escanaba athletic field in the first of three home games to be played on successive Saturdays. Kickoff is scheduled for two o'clock but a preliminary game between the junior varsities of the two schools is scheduled for 12:30 o'clock.

Belanger, the Eskymos' best passer, and Goymerac, lanky end who has been the team's ace passer since last season, will definitely be out of action today with torn ligaments. Goymerac suffered a shoulder injury and Belanger an elbow injury. Neither will don a uniform today. And if that isn't enough bad luck, the Eskymos will be further handicapped by an injury to Gardner, pullout guard, who sustained a sprained ankle. Gardner may see some action but he will not be in the starting lineup. All of the boys were injured in the Menominee game.

Starting Lineup
Schils has been shifted from tackle to end as replacement for Goymerac and Schmelzer will be at the tackle position on offense, with Lloyd Johnson substituting for Schmelzer when the Eskymos are on defense. Judson will take Gardner's post at right guard. Smith will play Belanger's half position.

The complete starting lineup, announced yesterday by Coach Ruwisch follows: Fries, left end; Schmelzer, left tackle; Biehler, left guard; Buckland, center; Judson, right guard; Turner, right tackle; Schils, right end; Johnson, quarterback; Peterson, left half; Smith, right half; Gustafson, fullback.

The Flyers are pinning their hopes today on big Keith Gunville, halfback who is back in service after being laid up with an ailing leg. Also the Kingsford team is confident that it can stop Gustafson, the Eskymos' bruising fullback who is the key to the Escanaba running attack.

Officials for the game are Wassberg, Goldsworthy and Treado, of Negaunee.

ROBINSON BOUT DELAYED
Detroit, Oct. 11. (AP)—A scheduled 10-round fight tonight between Sugar Ray Robinson of New York and Cecil Hudson of Milwaukee was postponed this afternoon after a state boxing commission physician reported Robinson suffering from "an acute upper respiratory condition." Fight promoters said the show would be held Oct. 18.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Today's football game between the Eskymos and Kingsford Flyers will bring together two teams that have been hard hit during the past week with injuries. The Eskymos lost three regulars—Goymerac, the team's leading passer; Belanger, left handed passer; and Gardner, guard, due to injuries and the Flyers will be without Williamson, regular guard, and Thornberry, second string end. Gunville, Kingsford's leading halfback, who has nursed a knee injury all week will be in action today, however.

Menominee's new lighting system at Walton Bleach field was installed last Saturday when the Eskymos played there so the 4,200 fans, including an unusually large Escanaba delegation, had a good chance to look the setup over. The field is equipped with 80 sealed beam floodlights, 40 on each side of the field, which is the best lighting installation of any U. P. grounds. Stambaugh has a 64-lamp system but Ironwood's arrangement only provides 40 lamps. The Menominee lamps are mounted on wood poles erected behind the bleacher section. The Maroons will use their lights for the first time Oct. 19 when Ironwood plays at Menominee.

There is at least one desecrating opinion regarding the value of lights for attracting football crowds. It comes from Bruce Guild at Iron Mountain, and explains why the Mountaineers abandoned night football for its home games this fall. Guild reports that over a period of years ideal weather on Saturday afternoons have outdrawn night games played under perfect conditions at Iron Mountain. This report is in sharp conflict with the records of other cities playing night football, however—Ironwood, Negaunee and Marinette particularly. The fact that the Ford plant does not operate on Saturdays may explain the Iron Mountain situation.

It requires a staff of 2,055 persons to service major football game at the University of Michigan stadium. Boy Scout ushers number 1,000 to seat the 85,938 paying customers and 500 ticket takers and aisle men are employed. Thirty groundsmen are available at all times and in addition there is a battery of 300 football writers, radio men, still and movie photographers, telephone operators and attendants in the press box. All this, plus the 125 piece U of M band and the visitors' band, usually of 100 pieces. And don't forget the football squad—about three teams each. The concessionaires complete the picture.

Hit and Miss—With Don Hutson finally out of action, Jim Benton, of Los Angeles, who finished second to Hutson in pass receiving in the pro league last year, now has taken over the top spot. The leading passer is Sid Luckman of the Bears. Outstanding ground gainer is Frank Filchook of New York. Leading in punting is McKay of Green Bay who kicked 11 times for 41.9 average. Bill DeCorrevont of Detroit registered the longest kick to date—81 yards against Washington on Oct. 6.

Watch The Quarterback In T-Formation --- Baer

By CHARLES E. BAER
(Head Football Coach, University of Detroit)

IV. How to Watch the T-Formation
In the old days, when the single wingback and punt formation ruled the gridiron, we told football fans to watch the ball carrier, or to watch the right guard. The action always centered around the ball, and the path of the ball was generally open to view.

Also, the right guard generally led the interference. He could be depended upon to arrive at the danger zone.
The T-Formation changed all that. With its emphasis on deception, it made the task of the spectator harder. No longer did he have an open view of the ball. The sleight-of-hand feinting designed to confuse the opposition is just as confusing to the fellow up in Row 18 on the 40-yard line. He can't see what's going on either.

Good Crowd Pleaser
That's why we have a new set of rules for watching football games.

The next time you see a T-Formation team in action, keep your eye on the quarterback. He is the center of all activity. He handles the ball on practically every play, either carrying it himself, or handing it off to another back.

Watch him carefully. After a few plays, you can catch the rhythm of the offense, and you will be able to follow the ball, even when the quarterback hands it off to some other back.

The T-Formation has become a great crowd pleaser, because it presents a fast, exciting attack. It is so designed that, on any play, a back might break away for a score.

The T is fashioned for a gambling team, not for a methodical one. The T team plays for high stakes. It throws all its power and speed into every play, gambling for a long run.

That's why the T might lose ten yards on one play and then gain 50 on the next. It is an unorthodox, unusual and exciting attack. For the fan who understands its aims, and who is familiar with its technique, it is more pleasing and more exciting to watch than any other form.

That is one of the chief reasons why it has taken the football world by storm—and why it has such a bright future.

CARDS CUFFED BY JOE DOBSON

All St. Louis Scores Come On Errors; Batting Flops

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Boston, Oct. 11 (AP)—Joe Dobson, a poor but honest relation of Boston's pitching peerage, twirled himself a spectacular four-hit, eight-strikeout game today to halt the Cardinals, 6 to 3, and send the Red Sox flying back to St. Louis needing only one more victory to wrap up the World Series.

The big moon-faced righthander, a last-hour choice of Manager Joe Cronin to pitch today's vital contest, fairly covered himself with baseball glory. He did not permit a single earned run, all three St. Louis scores crossing the dish as an outgrowth of errors in the second and ninth inning by Shortstop Johnny Pesky.

While the Cards, who only yesterday tied a World Series record by smashing 20 hits, were swinging futilely at Dobson's sharp curves, the Sox came back to life and belted three National League moundmen for 11 blows, including their almost daily four-bagger, by Leon Culberson.

Braze Tames Williams
In every frame except the third the lead-off Boston batter slammed a hit of some sort, and it was due solely to some lion-hearted slinging by Alpha Braze in the clutch that the Sox did not run up a higher count.

Three times Braze, who relieved Howie Pollet in the first frame with only one out and a run already across, faced the illustrious Ted Williams with men on the sacks. Twice he sent Ted down swinging at third strikes, and once he made him pop a weak foul to the catcher.

Pollet, the victim of York's 10th-inning swipe in the opener at St. Louis, pitched to only four Red Sox before Manager Eddie Dyer brought out the hook. The trim little lefty obviously didn't have a thing today.

Don Guttridge, who played second for the Sox in place of Bobby Doerr, who still was suffering with the headache which forced him to quit yesterday's game in the last inning, greeted Pollet with a sharp single through second base, and Pesky followed with a liner into right.

Dom DiMaggio rapped into a forecourt, but Williams, braving the Cards' "overbalanced" lineup in right, came through handsomely with a sock over Red Schoendienst that scored Pesky and that was a day's work for Pollet.

Braze from that point on pitched splendid ball, almost matching Dobson. He gave up another score in the second as the Sox went ahead 2-1 but it was a score that the Cards protested bitterly, and until Culberson led off the sixth with a rather cheap homer over the short leftfield fence, the Cardinal southpaw was in full control.

The Cards had tied it up at 1-1 in the second on Pesky's first error with two down, which was followed by Harry Walker's screaming double down the leftfield line. It looked as though St. Louis might remain very much in the ball game, despite Pollet's disappointing start.

Roy Partee, Sox relief catcher, led off the second with a rap into center. Dobson laid down a bunt and both runners were safe on Whitey Kurowski's throw to second.

Guttridge came through with his second straight single, a hot shot right at Terry Moore in centerfield. Partee off with the crack of the bat, rounded third like a race horse and tore for home as Moore got off a perfect throw to the plate. Catcher Joe Garagiola grabbed the ball and threw himself at Partee, just as the latter went into his slide.

It was close, but Umpire Lee Ballanfant signalled safe, and the fun began. Garagiola and several other Cards raved loud and long, and when the inning was over Manager Dyer again cornered the arbiter and expostulated angrily.

Both Spartans And Mississippi State Hunger For Victory

East Lansing, Oct. 11 (AP)—Getting back on the victory trail will be utmost in the minds of both Michigan State and Mississippi State football teams here Saturday when the Spartans and Maroons collide at Macklin Field.

Coach Charley Bachman's Michigan State eleven will be seeking victory No. 2 after losing last week to Boston College, 34-20, while Coach Allyn McKeen's Dixie outfit will be on the rebound after dropping a 13-6 contest to Louisiana State last week. The visitors are expected to hold a weight advantage on the line but the Spartans will probably be heavier in the backfield. Previous games between the teams have resulted in a 6-6 tie and a 33-19 Spartan victory.

If rain or a wet field forces the teams to stay on the ground, Halfbacks Russ Reader and George Guerre of Michigan State and Bill Murphy and Shorty McWilliams of the Maroons are expected to carry the running attacks. Reader and Murphy are the teams' No. 1 passers, respectively.

near the plate.
As it turned out, with Dobson limiting the Cards to a brace of hits for the next seven innings, the play wasn't so important, but it might, at that, have been the turning point. The crowd of 35,982 boomed Dyer lustily for his antics.

Culberson's four-master in the sixth made it 3-1, and the Sox sewed it up in the next with a three-run spurge on doubles by DiMaggio and Pinky Higgins, sandwiched between a couple of intentional walks and an error by the usually immaculate Marty Marion—his second in two days.

Dobson, pitching with beautiful control, did not issue a pass until Stan Musial worked him for one to open the ninth. Dobson then claimed Evy Dusak as his eighth strikeout victim, and when Kurowski hit a roller down to Pesky at short for a possible double play the crowd broke for the exits.

But Pesky kicked it around, and two were on. Joe Garagiola, the Cards' child prodigy, rolled out to York at first for the second out, and then Walker, who got exactly half of his team's hits, banged a looper into right to score Musial and Kurowski. That was all, though, the 29-year old Dobson clamped his jaw a trifle tighter and forced Marion to pop out to the infield.

Gladstone At Newberry Seeks Fourth Victory

Gladstone, Mich.—Seeking their fourth straight victory, the undefeated Braves of Gladstone high school travel today to Newberry to meet the Indians in a game which should prove the best test of the strength of the locals provided this season. The game is to start at 2 o'clock (EST).

Newberry has a record of four victories out of five games. After winning from Munising, Marquette and Negaunee they lost to Sault Ste. Marie but bounced back last weekend to trounce Manistique, 32-0.

Gladstone in its second game of the season walloped the Schoolcrafters 40-2. The Braves also have a 46-6 victory over Marquette. Newberry also holds a victory over the Graverets but by an unimpressive 12-0 margin. Indications are that Coach Eldon Keil will stick by his regular lineup: namely, Thivierge and Johnson, ends; Capt. Timler and Jugo, tackles; Rose and Sarasin, Jugo, tackles; Rose and Sarasin, quarterback; LeGault, left half; Young, right half, and Gillis, fullback.

Surprising Wildcats Watched In Big Nine

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—While Michigan is engaged in a mighty intersectional struggle with Army before 86,000 at Ann Arbor tomorrow, surprising Northwestern and rebounding Illinois will try to sneak alongside the Wolverines atop the Western Conference standings.

The Wolves, with decisions over Indiana and Iowa, have a 2-0 conference record which Northwestern and Illinois can match with victories tomorrow over Minnesota and Indiana respectively.

A third Big Nine battle unveils a pre-season favorite, Ohio State's Buckeyes, who make their conference debut at Madison against Wisconsin, a 28-0 upset victim of Northwestern last Saturday. Michigan's heralded meeting with Army, battered Purdue's invasion of Notre Dame, and Iowa's home scrap with Nebraska complete the day's activities for Big Nine teams.

Northwestern's Wildcats, ignored in the summer book, have brushed aside Iowa State and Wisconsin in impressive style and should make it three straight against the visiting Gophers, who were pasted 21-0 by Indiana last Saturday.

Coach Lynn Waldorf told a stellar guard this week when Ray Juskat quit the Wildcats to concentrate on his law books, but Vic Schyall and Frank Aschenbrenner give Northwestern power Minnesota apparently cannot match.

CADETS ARRIVE AT ANN ARBOR

Tarpaulin Keeps Rain Off Field; Battle Draws 85,938

BY FRANK KENESSON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 11. (AP)—Army's mighty football juggernaut, steaming along a trail of 21 straight triumphs, rolled into Ann Arbor today for its sellout battle with Michigan tomorrow but did not tarry long when a drizzling rain permitted the Cadets to take only a half hour's limbering-up exercise in sweat suits at Michigan stadium.

Immediately after the workout a tarpaulin was rolled back over the field and the 38-man Cadet squad—two touchdown favorites to slap down Michigan for the second straight year—shoved off in charted buses for pre-game headquarters at nearby Dearborn Inn, where the players will remain until shortly before Saturday's 2 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) kickoff.

While rain continued to fall this afternoon the weatherman promised crisp and cold but partly cloudy weather for tomorrow, when 85,938 cash customers—second largest crowd in history here—pour into the big bowl.

Although all tickets have been sold for two months a few in the hands of speculators were reported selling at $50 a pair although not many of the coveted pasteboards were available at any price.

Return of fullback Felix (Doc) Blanchard to a starting position after a two-week layoff with a knee injury was expected to add new momentum to army's seemingly endless victory parade with the hard-charging "Mr. Inside" again ready to mix 'em up in the Cadets' tricky "T" offense with the sweeping end runs of "Mr. Outside"—left halfback Glenn Davis—and the nose-pitching of quarterback Arnold Tucker. The "unknown soldier" of Army's starting backfield is right halfback Elwyn Rowan. Michigan's starting backfield included left halfback Bob Chapuis, the Wolverines' leading ground gainer who will be in the opening lineup for the first time this year, quarterback Howard Ferges, right halfback Paul White and fullback Jack Weisenburger who sparked Michigan's 75-yard touchdown march against Army a year ago in New York, when the Cadets won 28 to 7.

Perry Moss' versatility offsetting the inability of Buddy Young to get rolling, are one touchdown favorites over the host Hoosiers. Bo McMillin's defending champion, however, flashed some tricky spread stuff at Minnesota last week and his "pore lil boys" may be hard to handle.

The Buckeyes are favored over the Badgers mainly because of their comeback triumph over Southern California, 21-0. Ohio State's Tommy James and Joe Whisler provide a one-two offensive punch which may overpower a Badger line weakened by injury of Star Guard Ken Currier.

The Michigan-Army feature seems to pit Michigan's backfield quantity against Army's ball-carrying quality. Coach Fritz Crisler will parade a flock of capable Wolverine backs, but Army has Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard. Yet, Michigan unquestionably has improved since it gave Army a rousing scrap before losing, 28-7, last year, while the Cadets are minus some of the key linemen who swung open the gate for Davis and Blanchard in 1945.

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, winners over Illinois and Pittsburgh, should more or less toy with a Purdue team hamstrung by backfield injuries. Illinois, a 43-7 conqueror of Purdue last Saturday, was humbled by Notre Dame, 26-6, the previous Saturday.

Iowa, inspired by its ability to hold Michigan to a 14-7 victory, is rated four touchdowns better than Nebraska.

Other major midwestern clashes send Mississippi State to Michigan State and Idaho to Marquette at Milwaukee.

ST. JOE LADS SET FOR FIGHT

Vikings Rate Favorite; Starting Lineup Announced

The St. Joseph Trojans will play their second game of the season and their first away from home today when they meet the spirited Norway Vikings at Norway. The Trojans will shove off at 11 a. m. today for Norway and will tangle with the Vikings at two p. m. Last week Norway scored a surprising 6 to 0 victory over Iron Mountain.

The starting lineup for the Trojans, announced yesterday by Coaches Fran Farrell and Clarence Needham follows: Strophic, left end; Rademacher, left tackle; Garrett, left guard; E. McCarthy, center; McGuigan, right guard; McMartin, right tackle; Fassbender, right end; Ramspeck, quarterback; Gafner, left half; Lewis, right half; Mangler, fullback.

Other lads making the trip and who probably will see action today are Courneene and Miron, ends; Hermes, Douglas and Hirn, tackles; Harris and Gleich, guards; Menard, center; Tanguay and McCarthy, halfbacks.

St. Joseph was idle last week after scoring a 9-6 victory over Lourdes of Marinette in their opener two weeks ago.

The Norway team rules favorites over the Trojans, but the St. Joseph lads are prepared for a bitter battle.

CHICAGO PRICES

CHICAGO BUTTER
Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—(USDA)—But-ter, firm; trade unchanged.

CHICAGO EGGS
Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—(USDA)—Eggs, firm; market unchanged.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Cows and bulls climbed 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight today, vealers were up as much as $1.00, and lambs went up another 25 cents as strength showed up in virtu-ally all kinds and classes of meat ani-mals.

There were too few slaughter steers and heifers available to test the mar-ket, but the undertone was considered firm. Slightly good western beefsteers brought up to $17.50, and most good grade grass cows brought $15.00 to $16.50. Bulls took $13.00 to $15.50, while good and choice vealers merited $17.50 to $18.00.

Shippers again took 100 head of the 70c salable receipts, with 500 others going direct to packers. All brought the ceiling price of $16.25.

The top and popular price on good grade and choice native lambs was $20.50 and some medium to choice westerns were close at $20.25. Shorn yearlings held steady at $17.00 on good and choice types. Shorn slaughter ewes likewise were steady at $10.25 to $10.50 for good and choice offerings.

Football Forecast Hits .872 Average

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Having a surprising .902 last week, we head into the fourth edition of the football guessing special with a seasonal average of .872 on 102 correct predictions, 15 misses and seven ties.

Army vs. Michigan—Blanchard's back and Army's got him. The Wolverines have the better reserves, but reserves can't score from the bench. This will be a game between two first teams. Michigan admits it has been pointing for this one, but Army hasn't exactly overlooked the date on its calendar. "Til the mule loses its kick, one confident vote for Army."

Purdue vs. Notre Dame—The Boilermakers hurt their own chances by nearly separating their passing star, Bob De Moss, from one of his arms in practice. Even if he's able to play, Purdue is not in the same class with the Irish. One clearcut vote for Notre Dame.

Illinois vs. Indiana—The Hoosiers have found the right combination and rediscovered how it feels to win. Buddy Young has been slowed by a Charley horse, weakening the Illini attack, but there's nothing wrong with Perry Moss. Until the forward pass becomes obsolete, the nod to Illinois.

Minnesota vs. Northwestern—Both these teams crossed us up a week ago when Northwestern won and Minnesota lost. That should make things pretty clear for this one. Chalk it up for Northwestern.

Ohio State vs. Wisconsin—If the Buckeyes can go all the way to the coast and knock off Southern Cal, they can handle this assignment in their own league. Ohio State.

Duke vs. Navy—After setbacks by North Carolina State and Tennessee, Duke should be ready to win one. A hesitant nod to Duke.

Missouri vs. Kansas State—The Wildcats haven't beaten the Tigers since 1938. This is no time to start. Missouri.

Kansas vs. Iowa State—The Iowa State boys are going to eat those horses. They should save them to ride. Kansas.

Running rapidly over the rest of the day's better Midwest games: Iowa over Nebraska, Mississippi State over Michigan, Marquette over Idaho, Cincinnati over Dayton, Miami of Ohio over Bowling Green.

Cattle Shipments To Feeding Areas Largest Since 1940

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics reported today that shipments of stocker and feeder cattle into 11 principal midwestern corn belt states during July through September were 36 percent greater than during the corresponding period last year.

The number was said to have been of near record proportions and larger than in any other year since 1940.

Stocker and feeder cattle are sent to replace herds in the corn belt which have gone to slaughter market during the preceding winter, spring and summer.

The feeder cattle which originate largely in the western and southwestern range country and in areas where grain production is small, will be fed and fattened on grain. They will go to the slaughter market during the winter, spring and summer. Grain fed cattle usually provide more high quality meat than grass fed cattle.

Brooklyn, Oct. 11 (AP)—A 64 yard forward-lateral play in the dying moments of the game gave the Chicago Rockets a 21 to 21 deadlock with the Brooklyn Dodgers in a struggle that introduced the All-America Football Conference to 16,211 paying Brooklyn fans at Ebbets Field tonight.

The Detroit regional office said 60 percent of its inventory will be marked down to encourage manufacturers who have been slow to bid on certain WAA offerings.

Illicit Snapshots Of A-Bomb Seized; FBI Arrests Trio

Baltimore, Oct. 11 (AP)—Six snapshots taken on Tinian Island of material and equipment relating to the atom bomb were in the hands of federal agencies today after three men were taken into custody on a tip from alert Baltimore News-Post editors.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Military Intelligence agents arrested the men on accusations they attempted to peddle the unauthorized pictures, described by the FBI as "most detrimental to the security of the United States," for $7,000.

The first announcement of the arrests said that the pictures were of an atom bomb, but a bureau announcement later from Washington said further study of the photographs showed the pictures "were not of the atomic bomb itself, but were of material and related equipment to the atomic bomb x x x."

One of the men, a former private in the Army Air Forces, explained his possession of the pictures by saying he and four other servicemen surreptitiously removed the covering of an atomic bomb and took a photograph on Tinian Island in the late summer of 1945, the FBI said in announcing the arrests.

But how the private, George Wallace Comers, 23, of Bel Air, Md., managed to slip the photographs through security precautions "was without explanation."

Comer, with Miles Frederick Daubenheyer, also of Bel Air, and Capt. James Barnes Rike, Chattanooga, Tenn., were arraigned before United States Commissioner Ernest Volkart here today but were not asked to enter pleas. They were ordered held under $1,000 bond each for another hearing Oct. 23.

Fred Hallford, agent in charge of the FBI here, said the Department of Justice specifically charged that the men "did unlawfully publish a photograph of a piece of classified military equipment without first obtaining the permission of the commanding officer of the Army Air Forces based on Tinian."

He said conviction on the charge carries a penalty or a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, for each offense.

Bloomington, Ill. (AP)—When J. R. O'Neil is doing business at his open-air fruit stand, he wears an old top hat of Lincolnian line. "It attracts attention," he explains slyly. "People notice the hat, they stop and pretty soon they buy something. Using my head, eh?"

FUNDS NEEDED BY GRAND JURY

Little Legislature Puts Out $50,000 For New Secret Inquiry

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 11 (AP)—Disclosure that the Ingham county one man grand jury is about to undertake a new investigation of a matter "highly important to the people of Michigan" was made today by Circuit Court Judge Louis E. Coash.

The grand juror, in a letter to the little legislature, said the jury "on or about Oct. 5" had received information "relative to matters highly important to the people of Michigan, the nature of which requires action by the grand jury and an extensive and thorough investigation."

Judge Coash said the information was not known before Oct. 5 but was of such importance that it required an immediate judicial investigation.

The revelation of the new grand jury inquiry came during the little legislature's consideration of a request for an additional $50,000 for grand jury work.

Lone opposition to the appropriation came from State Senator Charles S. Bondy, a Detroit Democrat and who is under grand jury indictment in connection with the anti-branch bank bill conspiracy.

Bondy asserted he was "trying to save the people some money. I know how grand jury funds have been squandered."

The senator, after a conference with Governor Kelly, announced he had withdrawn his objections and the funds were approved.

The little legislature granted $100,000 to five Michigan colleges to enlarge their teaching staffs to handle increased enrollments.

The grants included: Western Michigan College of Education, with 1,000 "surplus" veterans enrolled and its enrollment 2,525 more than last June, $30,000; Northern Michigan College of Education, 250 surplus veterans and 423 more students than last June, $12,000; Central Michigan College of Education, 400 surplus veterans and 1,679 more students than last June, $15,000; Michigan State Normal college, 575 surplus veterans and its enrollment doubled, $16,000, and the Michigan College of Mines, 250 surplus veterans and 1,441 more students than last term, $27,000.

Argentina ranks with Canada as one of the two most important surplus food producing areas in the world.

More than four-fifths of Bulgarias 6,500,000 people make their living by farming and raising livestock.

Duke And Duchess Of Windsor Fuddle British Socialites

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, arriving late tonight at the country home of an old friend, told reporters they would remain in England until Nov. 11, when they expect to leave for the United States.

Their visit in Britain poses a problem of the century for etiquette-minded dowagers of the kingdom he once ruled.

Bareheaded and in tweeds, the ex-king arrived at Dover by boat train from France with the former Wally Simpson who is making her first visit to England—except for a fleeting stay in 1939 and a stop-over in port last year—since Windsor abdicated his throne for her love.

The couple set out immediately for Sunningdale, the Berkshire estate of their friend Lord Dudley, and the big question for Britons was how, or if, the commoner duchess would be received in the drawing rooms of the British elite not bound to the duke by ties of personal friendship.
